Your Donations at Work...

News from recipients of the Answers for Autism Grant program

Autism Advocates of Indiana appreciates all the donations received through its various fundraising events. We are proud of what we have been able to do with your donations and would like to share with you some examples of your donations at work for the Indiana autism community. We would like to bring attention to two programs that have benefited from your donations to Autism Advocates of Indiana.

Jacob's Place announces a new Autism Recreation Center

Jacob's Place' Youth Sports for Autism Program is a past recipient of an Answers for Autism Grant from Autism Advocates of Indiana. Thanks to a building donation that Jacob's place received this past Christmas they will be able to open a new Autism Recreation Center soon. The grant received from Autism Advocates of Indiana will be put to use at the new Recreation Center.

"We are so very thankful to Autism Advocates and all the many families across Indiana who participate in the walk!" said Kristine Barnett, Jacob's Place director. "Without the grant donation we would not have had many of the supplies that made the Youth Sports for Autism program a huge success! Autism Advocates played a huge role in getting Youth Sports for Autism on its feet!" The grant money was used to give awards to hundreds of kids and allow them to participate in team activities that were otherwise unavailable to them. Kristine wants families to know that programs offered through Youth Sports for Autism are free and there is open enrollment right now. Once the recreation center is open, Youth Sports will host sports teams, movie and game nights and open gym as well as parent support programs. If you would like more information on Jacob's place and the Youth Sports for Autism Program please contact kristineshouse@yahoo.com or visit myjacobsplace.org.

FUSE Inspiring Abilities Expo

FUSE (Families United for Support and Encouragement) was a grant recipient during the Fall 2009 Answers for Autism grant cycle. "The grant from Autism Advocates of Indiana will help expo organizers reach new families and professionals by expanding the advertising and marketing of the event," said FUSE's Executive Director, Denise Arland. The upcoming 4th annual Inspiring Abilities Expo will be held on Saturday, March 13, from 9 am to 3 pm at Greenfield-Central High School. At the expo, parents of children with disabilities of all types will have the opportunity to connect with service providers, non-profits agencies and other organizations that will benefit their child.

Nine training sessions are planned to address topics such as state funded services, future planning/special needs trusts, Medicaid waivers, mental health for children, speech/language, sensory integration and more. A full schedule for training will be posted on the FUSE website at www.fuseinc.org as soon as final confirmations are received from the speakers.

Admission is free of charge to anyone who wants to learn about resources and supports for children with disabilities. On-site child care is available at no cost to parents while they browse the exhibit area or attend training sessions. Papa John's will be onsite providing a pizza buffet for $5.

Pre-registration helps ensure that vendors have enough materials on hand for the event. You can register on the FUSE website by visiting the "What's New" page at www.fuseinc.org or by calling 462-9064. Pre-registration for child care is required.

Preventing Harmful Restraint and Seclusion Act

The Preventing Harmful Restraint and Seclusion in Schools Act \(H.R. 4247\) was introduced in Congress on December 9, 2009 in order to prevent unnecessary restraint of special education students in schools. It is sponsored by Congressman George Miller (D-CA), Chair of the House Education and Labor Committee and Congresswoman Cathy McMorris Rodgers (R-WA), Vice Chair of the House Republican Conference and Co-Chair of the Congressional Down Syndrome Caucus. Senator Chris Dodd (D-CT) introduced an almost-identical Senate bill, S. 2860.

The Preventing Harmful Restraint and Seclusion in Schools Act will establish minimum standards for the use of restraint and seclusion in schools. It will also support educators and schools by providing resources for training and support. Finally, it will improve data collection and identification of effective practices to prevent harmful restraint and seclusion in schools.

The Prevention of Abusive Restraint and Seclusion in Schools Act will ban:

- The use of mechanical and chemical restraints
- Restraints that impede breathing
- Aversives that compromise health and safety
- Using restraint and seclusion for "educational disruptions"

The bill permits physical restraint and locked seclusion only when there is an imminent risk of physical injury and requires direct face-to-face monitoring of children, enabling quick detection of distress and illness.

The bill will prohibit physical restraint and locked seclusion from being included in IEPs, BIPs, or other student educational plans.

H.R. 4247 requires:

- a strong positive behavioral intervention component
- the reporting of data
- the systematic training of staff

It also requires personnel to always ensure that less-restrictive measures are used, rather than using a plan that always ends in restraint/seclusion. The Department of Education must issue regulations six months after the bill is enacted, and the states must provide assurances of compliance to the Department within 2 years.
